Some of the most iconic flags in the world include the American flag, the British flag, and the French flag. These flags have been flown for centuries and are instantly recognizable.

Maps

A map is a representation of a geographical area. It can show the physical features of an area, such as mountains, rivers, and lakes. It can also show the political boundaries of an area, such as countries and states.

Maps are essential for navigation and planning. They can also be used to learn about the geography of a region.

Capital Cities

The capital city is the seat of government for a country. It is typically the largest and most important city in the country. The capital city is often home to the country's parliament, government buildings, and other important institutions.

Some of the most famous capital cities in the world include London, Paris, and Washington, D.C. These cities are known for their history, culture, and architecture.

Presidents and Prime Ministers

The president or prime minister is the head of government for a country. They are responsible for leading the country and overseeing the government. The president or prime minister is typically elected by the people or appointed by the monarch.

Some of the most famous presidents and prime ministers in the world include Barack Obama, Vladimir Putin, and Angela Merkel. These leaders have had a significant impact on the world and their countries.
